

Stay Connected—Blogs!

Greetings!

At Enlightium Academy (EA), we strive daily in bettering ourselves for the common good as educators and for the well-being of the Christian calling. One of the ways that we do this is by writing educational blog posts on our official blog. After using these blogs to focus on growing as educators, we want to share the information with others.

Blog contributors usually post twice-a-week about various topics. These include, but are not limited to:

- Informational posts concerning homeschooling
- Biblical posts about growing in faith
- ‘How-To’ posts about various school subjects
- Seasonal posts containing fun craft ideas
- Posts written by our educators about what is on their heart

At EA, we know that each student is unique. Each one has different preferences concerning interests, learning styles and talents. We want to partner with parents in order to bring out the full potential of every student and help them succeed in their dreams. We believe that the EA blog is a fantastic avenue for students and parents to grow mentally, emotionally, educationally and, most of all, biblically throughout the school year. Please join us on this journey of writing, growing and creating each week by subscribing to the blog to receive new helpful posts in your inbox!
